‘Looking for Burgess’

Stewart Purvis is a former Editor-in-Chief and Chief Executive of ITN, President of EuroNews and Ofcom Partner for Content and Standards. After retiring from ITN in 2003 he later became one of the BBC’s content regulators at Ofcom and oversaw standards cases involving the BBC. He was the Professor of Television Journalism at City University London from 2003 until 2011. He is a non-executive board director at Channel Four, Chairman of the Royal Television Society TV Journalism Awards and a trustee of SSVc. Stewart is the a co-author of a new investigation into Cambridge Spy Guy Burgess and his talk will explain how his interest in Media history has helped his research.
