AIMS OF THE DOCUMENT

The aims of this document are to:

- define the structure of the programme;
- specify the programme award titles;
- identify programme and level learning outcomes;
- articulate the regulations governing the awards defined within the document.

AIMS OF THE PROGRAMME

The aim of the programme is to equip students with the knowledge, skills and understanding they need to work in an industry which is multiplatform and increasingly digitally focused. Students are prepared for print, radio, mobile, data, social, TV and online roles in newspapers and magazines, websites, social media, audio or video. They are equipped to be convergence specialists and trained to be agile enough to respond to new technologies and consumer/audience behaviours.

The programme aims to develop graduates who can produce journalism in a legally, ethically and critically-informed manner who also have developed understanding of key issues in journalism at a time of technological, structural and regulatory change. The degree aims to produce graduates who combine the critical faculties that derive from a traditional academic degree with the professional skills and flexibility needed to get the best jobs in journalism.

The concept of the degree has grown from multimedia and multiplatform training to digitally focused, innovative journalism that not only satisfies readers and employers but which seeks to create new, diverse and creative ways of storytelling which engage readers via interactivity, social media, data journalism and data visualisation, web documentaries, blogs and apps. Students are encouraged to innovate and experiment with new technologies, new platforms and new ways of getting a story across to a reader who might in turn engage with them as a citizen journalist. The scope of ambition for our journalists far exceeds the skills-based demands of our accreditation councils and continues to be a key source of interest and communication with employers.

The programme aims to offer the vital core skills needed by professional journalists in an increasingly challenging 24hr rolling news environment. The programme aims to promote the employability of our students. Students are encouraged to showcase their journalism to the public from year 4 onwards via the externally-facing learning and teaching platform Buzz, via the online Rock website, via the campus radio station Nerve, via the campus magazine Nerve and via their own social media channels and websites. The students also engage with Fresher, the in-house digital publishing project.

The programme encourages community engagement via convergence news days, community-based exercises, election specials and coverage of AFC Bournemouth football matches and other events.

The programme continues to align with professional requirements and scrutiny by the NCTJ, PTC, and BJTC. The programme has been held up as a gold standard by the NCTJ for its delivery of ethics across all units as an embedded concept.

Outcomes from this programme are: high employability figures for our students; adaptable students prepared for a career path which will be ever evolving; students with the academic skills needed for lifelong learning; critically aware and questioning students; and a proud alumni who feed back into the course sharing their experience, knowledge and contacts, most visibly at the annual Journalism Careers Forum at Bournemouth.

ALIGNMENT WITH THE UNIVERSITY'S STRATEGIC PLAN

Our renewed and innovated curriculum for BA Multimedia Journalism is informed by the BU2025 Strategy of Fusion, in that students are offered a programme that is linked to practice and industry and informed by the latest research. In further accordance with Fusion, this degree also offers students the opportunity to graduate with a degree that makes them highly employable since they have both research and industry experience. In addition, BU2025 values are integral to the degree. The staff will continue to strive for excellence in how we work and support students; we will continue to value and respect diversity; we will continue to be imaginative, innovative and creative (hence incorporation of new innovative units); and we will continue to take responsibility for our actions. Indeed, BAMMJ has lead the way with sustainability. The BAMMJ degree was the first journalism degree to offer the BAFTA Albert The Applied Skills for a Sustainable Media Industry Certificate; the first students graduated in 2020. We will continue this valuable work.

LEARNING HOURS AND ASSESSMENT

Bournemouth University taught programmes are composed of units of study, which are assigned a credit value indicating the amount of learning undertaken. The minimum credit value of a unit is normally 20 credits, above which credit values normally increase at 20-point intervals. 20 credits is the equivalent of 200 study hours required of the student, including lectures, seminars, assessment and independent study. 20 University credits are equivalent to 10 European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) credits.

The assessment workload for a unit should consider the total time devoted to study, including the assessment workload (i.e. formative and summative assessment) and the taught elements and independent study workload (i.e. lectures, seminars, preparatory work, practical activities, reading, critical reflection).

Assessment per 20 credit unit should normally consist of 3,000 words or equivalent. Dissertations and Level 6 Projects are distinct from other assessment types. The word count for these assignments is 5,000 words per 20 credits, recognising that undertaking an in-depth piece of original research as the capstone to a degree is pedagogically sound.

Specific to BA Multimedia Journalism, most units are worth 20 credits with the the L6 Major Multimedia Project and Dissertation worth 40 credits each. This is compliant with the university's semester system.

STAFF DELIVERING THE PROGRAMME

Students will usually be taught by a combination of senior academic staff with others who have relevant expertise including – where appropriate and according to the content of the unit – academic staff, qualified professional practitioners, demonstrators/technicians and research students.

INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES – AND HOW THE PROGRAMME ENABLES STUDENTS TO ACHIEVE AND DEMONSTRATE THE INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES

A: Subject knowledge and understanding This programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding of:	The following learning and teaching and assessment strategies and methods enable students to achieve and to demonstrate the programme learning outcomes:
A1 Understand relevant theories, concepts and principles relevant to print, broadcast and online journalism. A2 Have a detailed knowledge and understanding of the historical, social, economic and political contexts within which journalists operate. A3 Place their professional journalistic knowledge within the regulatory and legal frameworks of the UK, and EU, including human-rights legislation. A4 Define problems and devise and evaluate possible solutions, and to solve both routine and	Programme overview Overview: (Note: Full details of assessment strategies and methods for each of the three BAMMJ Levels follows in next section) Central to our BAMMJ assessment strategy is the use of a diverse range of methods. External partners including examiners and industry professionals have noted the emphasis on core skills of journalism, technical skills, digital engagement and intellectual rigour assessed in multiple and innovative ways.

unfamiliar problems in ethical dimensions and within professional codes of conduct. A5 Understand the multi-disciplinary nature of journalism and the need to apply knowledge from a range of subject areas. A6 Integrate evidence from a range of sources to support findings and hypotheses to produce a significant piece of original research into an aspect of journalism. A7 Have knowledge and understanding to be "reflective practitioners". A8 Understand how languages and images are used to inform, persuade, and form attitudes, and how news is manufactured. A9 Evaluate the dynamic interaction of journalism and society against a background of structural, regulatory, technological, social and economic change. A10 Show an understanding of the structure of UK local and central government and the economy relevant to journalism.	The assessment methods used include timed news tests, critical essays, annotated bibliographies, fieldwork, individual and group presentations, reflective and peer assessment, industry pitches, multimedia poster campaigns, debate essays, a range of portfolios (content analysis, investigative, artefacts), online and multimedia artefacts (blogs, videos, written articles, podcasts, wikis), photo-essays, infographics. Our assessments are designed to address specific Intended Learning Outcomes, ensuring that there is a clear level-to-level progression. For example, at Level 4, Broadcast 1 students are made familiar with classic competencies and practical skills in preparation for Broadcast 2 which extends these skills further into areas such as the production of broadcast news packages. They also gain further experience of news days in Broadcast 2 which, in turn, prepares them for the L6 Converged Journalism unit. Level 6 assessments are highly advanced; in more practical or creative units they require students to produce work of professional standard and often to engage with specific target markets and industry requirements, while in more academic units they require a level of debate and reflection that underpins the dissertation as well as their future progression to postgraduate study.
B: Intellectual skills This programme provides opportunities for students to:	We have enhanced our assessment strategy by extending the use of online submission and diverse forms of feedback via Turnitin. Overall, the assessment methods utilised in the framework are highly tailored to the pedagogic needs of each unit, while adequately addressing the needs of BAMMJ's three accreditation bodies. Learning and teaching strategies and methods include lectures, seminars, directed reading, use of the VLE, peer learning, independent research etc.
B1 Evaluate critically and apply journalistic knowledge and skills flexibly and creatively to the changing demands of journalism. B2 Analyse and synthesise information. B3 Plan, execute and report on a project involving original research. B4 Integrate and evaluate information from a variety of sources. B5 Analyse critically published work in the field of journalism.	Assessment strategies and methods include practical work and assessment, timed work, coursework essays, dissertation, creation of multimedia projects/artefacts, pitches, presentations, news days etc. Please see below for full overview of how Programme meets full A-D ILOs at each Level
C: Practical skills This programme provides opportunities for students to: C1 Show proficiency in researching, writing, evaluating, and editing news and features C2 Use appropriate technical skills to present, produce, and layout journalism

Programme Specification - Section 2

C3 Show an understanding of the needs of various markets and audiences for journalism C4 Prepare reports and presentations. C5 Present research findings in a range of effective and appropriate formats. C6 Make effective use of the relevant academic literature and other sources of information. C7 Make effective use of IT and software packages relevant to the programme.
D: Transferable skills This programme provides opportunities for students to:
D1 Communicate effectively by oral, written and visual means. D2 Use digital technology including the Internet, a wide-range of software packages, and word processing. D3 Apply effective research skills D4 Apply shorthand skills D5 Work in collaboration with others, including staff and students. D6 Demonstrate problem solving skills and the flexible application of knowledge across a wide-range of disciplines. D7 Identify and work towards targets for personal, career, and academic development. D8 Be independent and reflective learners.
