AIMS OF THE DOCUMENT

The aims of this document are to:

- define the structure of the programme;
- specify the programme award titles;
- identify programme and level learning outcomes;
- articulate the regulations governing the awards defined within the document.

AIMS OF THE PROGRAMME

- To enable graduates with first degrees (or equivalent) in subjects such as communication, English literature or cultural studies to develop their critical skills, subject understanding and creative capacity to a higher level, equipping graduates for a career in the media industry broadly defined; or for further study at doctoral level.
- The programme offers distinctive units with the emphasis on the study and analysis of cultural 'texts' within the context and history of print and digital media.
- The programme aims to produce flexible graduates who can think rigorously, critically, analytically and imaginatively and apply knowledge to practical situations. It will embed research skills in a process of continuous development, and aims to develop professional writing skills, for a potential career in the creative and media industries, or for further academic research at doctoral level. The strong oral communication and presentation skills they develop will enable them to present themselves and their ideas in a professional manner.
- All students explore the fundamental roles played by narrative in thought, society, literature and the media. They learn to critically evaluate a variety of texts drawn from film, television, the internet, literature and popular culture, and to relate those texts to the wider fields of which they are a part.
- A process of embedding research skills is integrated into the programme delivery as ongoing supported activities.
- Employers of English and Literary Media graduates are looking for lifelong independent learners who have strong communication skills and the ability to work in teams. This is reflected in the aims and intended learning outcomes of the programme. Graduates of the programme enter a wide range of careers, including management, the communication industry, the creative and media industries and teaching. Similarly, the programme provides training and development for those who wish to progress to further study at doctoral level.

ALIGNMENT WITH THE UNIVERSITY'S STRATEGIC PLAN

Our response to the sector need to renew English Studies for the C21st is informed by the BU2025 Strategy of Fusion, in that elements of professional practice (media, publishing, markets, audiences) are combined with society-oriented thematic issues aimed at social enrichment not otherwise primarily addressed in competing English MAs. Furthermore, the professional practice that we combine with our research-based teaching and teaching methods is not merely an additional perspective but an object of research itself (our research into industry's delivery of narrative and fiction), thus creating a unique inspiring learning experience, and advancing new knowledge in the field of English studies.

LEARNING HOURS AND ASSESSMENT

Bournemouth University taught programmes are composed of units of study, which are assigned a credit value indicating the amount of learning undertaken. The minimum credit value of a unit is normally 20 credits, above which credit values normally increase at 20-point intervals. 20 credits is the equivalent of 200 study hours required of the student, including lectures, seminars, assessment and independent study. 20 University credits are equivalent to 10 European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) credits.

The assessment workload for a unit should consider the total time devoted to study, including the assessment workload (i.e. formative and summative assessment) and the taught elements and independent study workload (i.e. lectures, seminars, preparatory work, practical activities, reading, critical reflection).

Assessment per 20 credit unit should normally consist of 3,000 words or equivalent. Dissertations and Level Major Projects are distinct from other assessment types. The word count for these assignments is 5,000 words per 20 credits, recognising that undertaking an in-depth piece of original research as the capstone to a degree is pedagogically sound.

STAFF DELIVERING THE PROGRAMME

Students will usually be taught by a team comprising senior academic staff with others who have relevant expertise including – where appropriate according to the content of the unit – academic staff, qualified professional practitioners, demonstrators/technicians and research students.

All units are weighted towards shared expertise, with delivery team members positioned to co- and cross-teach.

ADMISSION REGULATIONS

The admissions regulations for this programme are the University's Standard Postgraduate Admission Regulations.

Students will normally enter this programme with a second-class (or higher) undergraduate degree in a relevant subject such as Communication, English, Literature, Cultural Studies or similar. Full time students will complete the degree in one year; part time students will complete the degree over two years. The programme consists of 6 M-Level units plus a final dissertation or major project. Completion of the degree will enable the student to undertake further study at doctoral level.

The University's standard Admission Regulations are available here

<https://intranetsp.bournemouth.ac.uk/pandptest/3a-postgraduate-admissions-regulations.pdf>

PROGRESSION ROUTES

Recognition arrangements provide formally approved entry routes through which students are eligible to apply for a place on a programme leading to a BU award. Recognition does not guarantee entry onto the BU receiving programme only eligibility to apply. In some cases, additional entry criteria such as a Merit classification from the feeder programme may also apply. Please see the Recognition Register (https://intranetsp.bournemouth.ac.uk/pandptest/7J_Recognition_Register_Public.xlsx) for a full list of approved Recognition arrangements and agreed entry criteria.

In order to take advantage of exciting new approaches to learning and teaching, as well as developments in industry, the current, approved recognition route(s) for this programme may be subject to change. Where this happens students will be informed and supported by the Faculty as early as possible.

ASSESSMENT REGULATIONS

The assessment regulations for this programme are the University's Standard Postgraduate Assessment Regulations.

Regulations for PG taught programmes are here:

WORK BASED LEARNING (WBL) AND PLACEMENT ELEMENTS

Placement is an option made available. However, as the programme is a one year full-time non-vocational degree, it becomes challenging for students to undertake during the intensive study of one year, and would have to occur during semester three in tandem with dissertation/major project. For part time students, placement is a more feasible option, and would fall during semester three of year one. Should a student request a placement we advise this to be a minimum of four weeks.

The placement provides the opportunity for students to integrate the academic and skills-based learning acquired from units during the previous semesters, enabling students to analyse and evaluate their own learning in the context of self and employer appraisals. It allows students to develop their abilities and understanding of English and Literary Media and related subjects, and provides a platform for successful entry into the profession following graduation.

Graduation is not conditional on completing a placement and placement is not defined as a credit-bearing unit. It is assessed on a pass/fail basis using the log book and employer appraisal. Students must have completed their placement the minimum of four weeks before the final Assessment Board. If undertaken, to complete a placement students must:

Programme Specification - Section 1

- Complete a minimum of 4 weeks satisfactory work experience
- Complete the placement log book satisfactorily; this may include assignments relating to the nature of their work and the organisation they are working in
- Satisfactorily meet the performance criteria of the placement as determined by the completed assessment forms from the company, the Placement Development Advisor and the student.
